Instructions: The sheep

For the sheep's body, shape a thick egg (approx. 3 cm long) out of 3 strips of white FIMO soft. Make a sausage out of the remaining strip and divide it into small, equally sized pieces. Then roll the pieces to a ball and flatten a little.

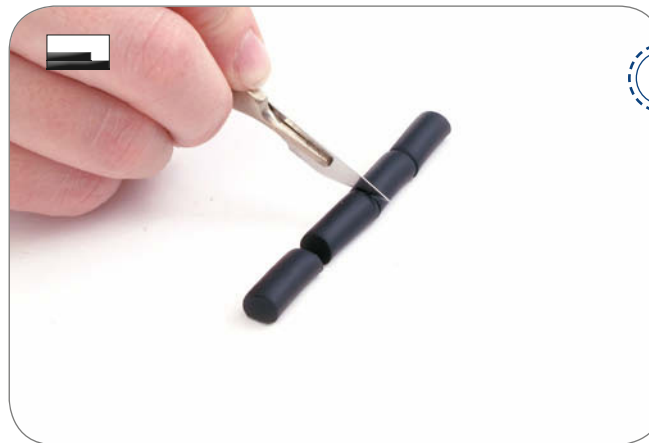

Thanks to the portioning aid, it's easy to cut your block of FIMO into the right portions.

Carefully position these flattened balls on the body. They give your sheep a nice woolly coat. Keep two of the balls for making the eyes with later on.

Shape an oval head out of 2 strips of black FIMO soft and attach it to the body.

For the legs, form an approx. 8 cm long sausage using the indicated quantity of black FIMO soft. Divide it into four pieces of equal length.

Press the four legs carefully onto the underneath of the body.

Now it's time for the ears! Make two balls out of the indicated quantity of black FIMO soft and flatten them a little. Then fold the edges in to create small ears. Attach the ears to each side of the head.

For the eyes, make two tiny black balls and press them onto the two remaining slices of white FIMO soft from step 2.

Finish off by adding nostrils using a modelling stick or toothpick - that's it!

Place the sheep in the oven for 30 minutes at 110°C to harden.

Tip: Interested in making more? Cats and dogs are to be found on farms too and, if you leave the horn off the unicorn, you can even turn your farm into a riding stables.
